Demonstration against university reform

and for university attendance for all

Date

1969-1979

Medium

gelatin silver print

Description

During the 1960's and 1970's, various reform laws were proposed, but never came to a final vote in Parliament; this was due not only to governmental instability, but also to strong academic political connections and conservatism.

Placard reads: 'Sinistre unite alla opposizione contro la ristrutturazione per una università democratica qualificata e di massa" [United left organisation against reform. For democratic, qualified university for all]
