

Basic Detail Report

---

Jean-Jacques Servan-Schreiber, Giuseppe Petrilli and Piero Bassetti hosting a meeting

Date

1969-1979

Medium

gelatin silver print

Description

Jean-Jacques Servan-Schreiber, often referred to as JJSS (13 February 1924, in Paris – 7 November 2006, in Fécamp), was a French journalist and politician. He co-founded L'Express in 1953 with Françoise Giroud, and then went on to become president of the Radical Party in 1971. He oversaw its transition to the center-right, the party being thereafter known as Parti radical valoisien. He tried to found in 1972 the Reforming Movement with Christian Democrat Jean Lecanuet, with whom he supported Valéry Giscard d'Estaing's conservative candidature to the 1974 presidential election. Giuseppe Petrilli was an Italian professor and European Commissioner. A professor, Giuseppe Petrilli became president of IRI (the Italian Institute for Industrial Reconstruction – a powerful state-owned holding company) in 1960 and served for almost twenty years, until 1979 Piero Bassetti is a politician and entrepreneur

Dimensions

Overall: 21.2 x 30.3 cm (8 3/8 x 11 7/8 in.)