Description

A trial was held in Padua in 1973 against Gigliola Pierobon, who was a minor at the time, she was accused of illegal abortion. Quote from Pierobon: "My name Gigliola Pierobon. Many people know me for the girl who had an abortion, and that was "judged" by the Padua courthouse. My story has become public knowledge 'the case Pierobon'. Yet my story is that of so many other women and my "offense" is a fact committed every year in Italy for more than three million women, with as many partners , "doctors" and praticoni. My "crime", the "crime" of the majority of women, is deliberately planned by those in power to leave the woman in the unavailability of one's body and thus their own choices
